THE PORTRAIT OF A LADY

- Khushwant Singh

HUSHWANT SINGH (1915 - 2014) was an Indian novelist, lawyer, journalist and politician. He studied law at St. Stephen's College, Delhi and the King's College, London. He joined the Indian Foreign Service in 1947. As a writer, he is best known for his keen interest in secularism, sarcasm and love for poetry. He was awarded the Padma Bhushan in 1974 and Padma Vibhushan in 2007 and the Sahitya Akademi Fellowship in 2010. The Mark of Vishnu, A History of Sikhs, The Train to Pakistan, Success Mantra, We Indians and Death at my Doorstep are some of his brilliant works. Between 1980 and 1986, he served as the Member of Parliament in Rajya Sabha, the upper house of the Parliament of India.

INTRODUCTION:

This story gives us the real picture of human relationships in a joint family. It is written in the first person and is in auto-biographical mode. It is a perception of Khushwant Singh of his grandmother. He describes how he spent his childhood with his grandmother in a village. He also describes the change in social life when he moved to the city. Ultimately, he describes the scene of her death. His description of his grandmother is deeply touching, with his usual poetic touch.

a. Describe the grandfather as seen in the portrait.

(HY-'18; June-'19 & '23; QY-'18, '19, '23 & '24)

The author's grandfather appeared as a hundred-year-old man in the portrait. He wore a big turban and loose-fitting clothes. His long, white beard covered the best part of his chest. He did not look the sort of person who would have a wife or children.

b. Why was the author left with his grandmother in the village?

The author's parents had gone to live in the city. So, they left him with his grandmother, in the village.

c. Where did the author study in his childhood?

(Aug-'22)

The author studied in a village school which was attached to a temple.

d. Why did the grandmother accompany the author to school?

(Govt. MQP; CRT & May-'22)

The grandmother accompanied the author to school in order to make him study the lessons and also get herself to read the scriptures inside a temple. Here, the school was attached to the temple.

e. What made the dogs follow the grandmother after school hours?

(June-'19)

The dogs followed the grandmother after the school hours for the chapattis that were thrown to them.

f. Why didn't the grandmother feel sentimental when the author went abroad for higher education?

(Sep-2020)

The grandmother had good confidence in the author and also had enormous faith in prayers. She came to see him off at the station and kissed him on his forehead leaving a moist imprint to show her love and affection. So she did not feel sentimental when he went abroad for higher study.

g. What was the happiest time of the day for grandmother?

(HY-'19; Sep-'21; June-'23)

The grandmother used to feed hundreds of sparrows every day in the afternoon with the little bits of bread for half-an-hour. It was the happiest time of the day for her.

2. ANSWER THE FOLLOWING QUESTIONS IN THREE OR FOUR SENTENCES EACH.

a. Describe the author's grandmother.

(HY-'18; Mar-'24)

The author's grandmother was short, fat and slightly bent. She could never have been pretty, but she was always beautiful. She hobbled around the house in spotless white clothes with one hand resting on her waist to balance her stoop and the other hand telling the beads of her rosary. Her silvery-white hair used to scatter on her wrinkled face. Her lips constantly moved in an inaudible prayer. She was beautiful with the peacefulness, serenity and contentment.

b. What was the daily routine of the grandmother at home?

(HY-'18; July-'24)

The grandmother woke him up in the morning and would get him ready for school. She plastered his wooden slate, prepared breakfast, and took him to school. She also carried several chapattis to feed the village dogs. Leaving him at the school she would sit inside a temple and would read scriptures. Finally, she would return home with her grandson. She used to feed the dogs with chapattis on the way back home.

c. How is school education in the village different from that in the city?

Primary education was given in the village school. The students were taught alphabets. Everyday they would be singing prayer songs, patriotic songs, etc. in chorus. The basic education was simply limited to reading, writing and arithmetic. In the city school, English, Science, Music, and other subjects were taught. However there was no teaching about God and the Scriptures.

d. The grandmother appreciated the value of education. Give instances in support of your answer.

The grandmother was very concerned about the education of her grandson. So, she used to wake him in the morning and would get him ready for school. She washed his wooden slate and plastered it with yellow chalk. She tied his earthen ink-pot and a red pen into a bundle. She prepared his breakfast and took him to the school. Finally, she would return home with her grandson. All these things showed that she appreciated the value of education, as it is the most important aspect of life.

e. The grandmother was strong-minded. Justify.

The grandmother was religious and had certain ideas about life. She considered that teaching of scriptures was more useful and productive than Science and Music. When she came to know of the subjects of study of her grandson in the city school, she was unhappy. When he told her that music was one of the lessons, she did not reply and kept herself in silence showing her disapproval. After that, she rarely talked to him. In a state of loneliness and seclusion, she took to the spinning wheel and feeding the sparrows. When her grandson decided to go abroad for further studies, she did not talk or show any emotion, but came to the railway station. While celebrating the homecoming of her grandson, she sang and thumped a drum for several hours. She ignored everyone who persuaded her to stop. When she knew that her end was nearing, she stopped talking to everyone. She ignored their protests and started praying and telling her beads. These facts showed that she was strong-minded lady.

f. How did the grandmother spend the last few hours of her life?

The grandmother celebrated the returning of her grandson from abroad. In the evening, for the first time ever, she did not pray. She collected several women of the neighbourhood and sang songs related to the homecoming of the warriors. The next morning, she was taken ill. It was a mild fever and the doctor said that it would be alright. However, she knew that her end was near. She decided to spend the last few hours of her life reciting prayers and was not going to waste any more time talking to anybody. She lay peacefully in bed praying and telling her beads. Soon, her lips stopped moving and the rosary fell from her fingers. She was dead.

TEXTUAL PARAGRAPH QUESTIONS

3. ANSWER THE FOLLOWING IN A PARAGRAPH OF 100 - 150 WORDS EACH.

a. The grandmother played a vital role in the author's formative years. Give your own example of how elders have a positive influence on the younger generation. Include examples from the story also.

(QY-'18 & Aug-'22; Mar-'23)

PH: 8124201000 / 8124301000

The positive influence of elders on the younger generation

The elders guide the younger generation in teaching them how to care for others. They inculcate important aspects like thoughtfulness, kind-heartedness, discipline, patience, the ability to listen, developing social skills, communication skills, companionship, gaining wisdom beyond one's age, time management, etc. to the younger generation. In these ways, the elders have a positive influence on the younger generation.

Many elders today would say that times have changed, or the situations or struggles are not quite the same. However, continuing to do things in their way, those same people will often tell us that they wished they had listened when others were trying to advise them. It would have saved them a lot of hardship and pain. Training a boy, taking the advice of others who have experienced certain things into account, multiple options, and a plan may all help prepare for things to come. Learning from the mistakes of others so that one does not make the same mistake is very wise.

In this story, though the grandmother had no proper schooling and no formal education, she lived a life of dedication and integrity. She never compromised with her principles and was a determined woman. She had shown her love for even animals and birds in feeding the street dogs and sparrows. These qualities certainly influenced the author.

b. As young Khushwant Singh, write a letter to your parents describing your daily routine expressing your thoughts and feelings about staying in the village.

Dear Mom and Dad,

Hope this letter finds you in the best of health.

Here grandma and I are good friends. Every morning she wakes me up and gets me ready for school. While she baths and dresses me, she sings a prayer song. She hopes that I will listen to it and get to learn it by-heart. She washes my wooden slate and plasters it with yellow chalk. Then she ties my earthen ink-pot and a red pen into a bundle. After that she would prepare my breakfast, chapatti with butter and sugar spread on it, and take me to the school. She would also carry several chapattis with her for the village dogs. My school is attached to a temple. The priest teaches us the alphabet and the morning-prayer. We, the children, would sit in rows on either side of verandah singing the alphabet or the prayer in chorus. Grandma would sit inside reading the scriptures. When we both are finished, we would walk back home together. The village dogs follow us from the temple door to our home. Grandma throws the chapattis pieces to them.

It has become a daily habit. I love being with her. Hope to see you soon.

Take care of your health.

Your loving son, Place: Hadali

Khuswant Singh. Date: 10th August, 1919.

c. Animals are capable of empathy. Substantiate this statement with examples from the story as well as your own experiences.

For decades, scientists who are trying to study animal empathy have run into a simple fundamental problem. A recent research report tells that scientists are now finding evidence of empathy in non-human animals, mainly in other primates such as chimpanzees, orangutans, dogs, mice, and recently in chicken. Empathetic behaviour has also been reported in elephants. Nobody can deny that certain animals recognize relationships and attach well with human beings.

The relationship between the author's grandmother and the village dogs as well as the sparrows is a proof for statement. She was very kind-hearted. When she was in the village, she used to carry stale chapattis with her while taking her grandson to school. On returning, she would feed the dogs, which were following her from the temple to her home. When she came to the city, she took to feeding the sparrows. She used to throw little crumbs of bread to them. They would sit on her legs, shoulders and head. When she died, all the sparrows came silently to mourn her death.

Even, in my house, while feeding the doves, I find that they behave in a more compassionate manner, with discipline and affection. It is really surprising to note. So, we can conclude that certain animals and birds are capable of empathy.

When she moved to the city, she was distressed that there was no teaching about God and the scriptures in her grandson's studies. Further, when he went up to University, their friendship was snapped. While she sat in the verandah breaking the bread into little bits, hundreds of little birds collected round her. Some of the sparrows came and sat on her legs, others on her shoulders. Some even sat on her head. She smiled but never shooed them away. It used to be the happiest half-an-hour of the day for her.

A HAPPY FAMILY

There is a quote from Anna Karenina by Leo Tolstoy, "All happy families resemble one another, every unhappy family is unhappy in its own fashion." Every member of a family wishes to contribute to form a happy family, irrespective of nuclear family or joint family. What makes a family happy? How can each member contribute to form happiness? Everybody will tell that high salaried job or profitable business is the basic need for happiness. So, money, big house, costly dresses, tasty dishes are the criteria for happiness. There is no doubt that these things will make a family happy. But there are some more aspects other than these. What are they? Love, honesty and care for each member of the family. The children will learn honesty from observing the activities of their parents. Spending weekends with all the family members will bring happiness. Everybody should interact with each other over a group of activities. Happiness is the result of spending time together meaningfully. Pleasant memories will stay with everybody forever.

TASK: You are Mani / Megalai of Class XI, President of the English Club of your school. Draft a speech on the topic 'Reading Maketh a Complete Man', to be delivered in the school assembly. (HY-'24)

Drafting a Speech:

READING MAKETH A COMPLETE MAN

Good morning everyone! Respected Principal, reverend teachers and beloved friends; I am Megalai of Class XI and I am here today to talk about the importance of reading.

We as students have always misunderstood that reading is only confined to our textbooks, but in reality, reading goes beyond our school books. Reading brings, wide knowledge and experiences of many people from different parts of the world. It makes us wonder and to see the world from another person's perspective. It expands our imaginative horizon and explores new boundaries.

It is really true that reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body. It makes the brain think, enriches the imagination and at the same time it provides pleasure and helps people to relax. Neither TV nor the Internet can replace good books. That's why those who want to be smart and intelligent should spend time on reading at least 30 minutes everyday.

Books contain grains of wisdom. They give us sound moral advice and teach us what is right and what is wrong. English philosopher Bacon said that "Reading makes a full man". The truth of this statement can hardly be questioned.

I thank you all for giving me this opportunity to speak about the importance of Reading. Let us all take an oath to read throughout our life and enrich our mind, body and soul.

C. Debate is an essential skill and your class room is the best place to practice this skill. Your teacher will now divide the class into two groups and organize a debate on the topic "Fast food tastes better than nutritious food". The following points may help you to participate and speak in a debate. One group will speak FOR the motion and the other group will speak AGAINST the motion. Now prepare a speech for the debate.

For

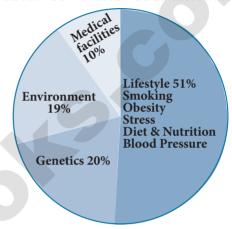

Respected Jury and my dear friends. I would like to speak supporting the motion "Fast food tastes better than nutritious food". First of all, the topic deals with 'taste' and not health. It has been scientifically proved that when one consumes food that is high in fat and sugar, one's cravings for such food will increase. The texture and flavour give the real mouth feel. Trans fat in fried foods tastes better. Moreover, I wish to state that the actual macro-nutrient make-up of the food is an important factor. The amount of carbohydrate and proteins. The food manufacturers spend millions to find the perfect combo of salt, sugar and fat that gives our brain a pleasurable. feeling. So, I conclude saying that fast food always tastes better. Thank you.

Against

Good evening to one and all. I am going to speak against the motion, "Fast food tastes better than nutritious food". Before I begin, I wish to defend the point that the perfect combo of salt, sugar, fat makes food tastier. Natural sugar cane, pepper and rock salt are healthy, tasty and harmless. We have to know that our taste buds need a boost. Herbs and spices can make a huge impact on your nutrient intake as well as offer taste. The sandwich of fresh vegetables and salad of fruits dipped in honey is worth a million. Fast food kills the real pleasure of staying fit. They add to cholesterol. On the other hand, nutritious food always supports our wellness. The right nutrients at the right time offer us a perfect taste, so, I request you all to eat healthy, stay fit and be happy.

It is our lifestyle that shapes our future and propels our energy in achieving our goals. It has been recently researched and published that, around 50% of people in the world follow an unhealthy lifestyle whereas 10% and 19% of the people take responsibility towards Health and Environment respectively.

Not so healthy lifestyle followers actively indulge in smoking, drinking and drugs. These lead to stress, obesity, blood pressure and heart diseases. Stress is an important lifestyle changer. Stress can be either physical and mental pressure due to work, marriage, relationship, family, or friends. It is important to manage stress by doing Yoga, Meditation and Breathing exercises regularly to avoid any fatal consequences due to stress.

As responsible individuals, it is our basic necessity to take care of our health. For a healthy body, we need to follow a healthy lifestyle. After all, Health is Wealth.

In his ordinary life, he remembers almost everything that he is expected to remember.

d) What is the commonest type of forgetfulness, according to Lynd?

The matter of posting letters is the most common type of forgetfulness according to Lynd.

e) What does the author mean when he says the letter in his pocket leads an unadventurous life?

The letter which is forgotten, due to a long chain of circumstances, leads an 'unadventurous life' after it comes to the hands of Lynd.

f) What are the articles the writer forgets most often? (or) What are the common things we often forget, according to Robert Lynd? (HY-'24)

Books, walking-sticks and umbrella are the articles the author forgets most often.

g) Who are the citizens of 'dreamland'? Why?

(Mar-'24)

The sportsmen are the citizens of 'dreamland'. The reason is that they have their imaginations still filled with a vision of the playing field. They are abstracted from the world outside.

h) What is common about the 'angler' and the 'poet'?

Both are imaginative people and their minds are filled with matter more glorious. Absent-mindedness of this kind is common about the 'angler' and the 'poet'.

2. BASED ON YOUR READING, ANSWER THE FOLLOWING QUESTIONS IN TWO TO FOUR SENTENCES EACH.

a) What made people wonder about the absentmindedness of their fellow-beings?

The publication of a list of articles lost by railway travellers and the sale of the same at a great London station makes people wonder at the absentmindedness of their fellow-beings.

b) What are our memories filled with?

(HY-'19)

The memory of people is mostly filled with the telephone members and addresses of their friends and the names of actors, actresses, cricketers, footballers and also murderers.

c) When does human memory work with less than its usual capacity?

(Govt. MQP)

A very methodical man always remembers to take the prescribed medicine in time. In such occasion, human memory works with less than its usual capacity.

d) Why, according to Lynd, should taking medicines be one of the easiest actions to remember?

As a rule, medicine is supposed to be taken before, during, or after meals and the meal itself should be a reminder of it. So, taking medicines should be one of the easiest things to remember.

e) How do the chemists make fortunes out of the medicines people forget to take?

(Mar-'19)

People don't like medicines and that is why they forget to take. In this context, Robert Lynd humorously remarks that chemists make a lot of money. It is because people forget to take medicines and therefore their illness is not cured. So the people pay more and more money to the chemists to buy more medicines.

f) The list of articles lost in trains suggest that sportsmen have worse memories than their ordinary seriousminded fellows. Why does Lynd say this?

Sportsmen returning from the games forget to take back their footballs and cricket-bats, with them when they leave the train. It is due to the reason that they have their imaginations still filled with a vision of the playing-field. But the ordinary man arrives at his destination with all his bags and trunks safe. Thus, Lynd rationalizes their act.

g) What kind of absent-mindedness is regarded as a virtue by Lynd?

(Mar-'23)

The angler may forget his fishing-rod, as the poet may forget to post a letter, because his mind is filled with matter more glorious. Absent-mindedness of this kind is regarded as a virtue by Lynd.

h) Narrate the plight of the baby on its day out.

Lynd narrates a very funny story of a father who takes his baby out in a perambulator in the morning. When he was crossing near a public-house, he was tempted for a glass of beer. He left the perambulator outside in the street and went into the public-house. After some time, his wife came that way for shopping. She was horrified to see her sleeping baby in the perambulator. She was so angry with her husband that she decided to teach him a lesson and wheeled away the perambulator. She expected that her husband would come trembling and would tell her that their baby had been stolen. On the contrary, at lunch-time, her husband came home smiling cheerfully. He had completely forgotten about his child in the perambulator.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS - ADDITIONAL

1. Why does Lynd infer that the world has not yet begun to produce ideal statesmen?

Statesmen seem to have extraordinarily bad memories. The frequency with which the facts in the autobiographies and speeches of statesmen are challenged, suggests that the world has not yet begun to produce ideal statesmen - men, who have the genius of memory and of intellect combined.

2. Enumerate the various ways by which forgetfulness manifests, according to Lynd.

Articles left by the travellers in Railways, medicines not taken at regular intervals, letters not posted in time, articles such as walking-sticks, umbrella left in taxis and other places, footballs and cricket bats left by the sportsmen in trains, poor memory of statesmen, leaving the child outside a public house, are the various ways by which forgetfulness manifests, according to Lynd.

(HY-'19)

Chennai-40, 23rd May, 2018.

PH: 8124201000 / 8124301000

My Dear Siva,

Hope this letter finds you in good health. I am happy to tell you that our team has won the cricket match held at Bengaluru. I know that you are unable to participate due to your leg injury, but I thank you for giving me your branded cricket bat. I scored 40 runs with your bat. We returned from Bengaluru yesterday and I immediately went to your house. Your father told me that you had gone to your uncle's house at Coimbatore for the summer holidays. He gave me the address. Siva, I am sorry to tell you that I have absent-mindedly left your bat in the hotel room. I really regret for the loss of your bat. I promise I will replace it with a new bat. Please convey my regards to your uncle.

Your loving friend,

b) Kahlil Gibran states 'Forgetfulness is a form of freedom'. Write an article for your school magazine, linking your ideas logically and giving appropriate examples.

THE CAUSE AND EFFECT OF FORGETFULNESS

- An article by K. Viman

Our memory problems are probably caused by more issues like stress, medications, not getting enough sleep, hormonal changes, depression and alcohol. For example, forgetting your lunch at home, forgetting where you kept your car / motor cycle key, forgetting to switch off the lights / fan while leaving your house, etc. Stress and anxiety. Anything that makes it harder to concentrate and lock in new information and skills can lead to memory problems. Stress and anxiety both can interfere with attention and block the formation of new memories or the retrieval of old ones.

Medications. Tranquillizers, antidepressants, some blood pressure drugs, and other medications can affect memory, usually by causing sedation or confusion. This can make it difficult to pay close attention to new things.

Lack of sleep. Not getting enough sleep is perhaps the greatest unappreciated cause of forgetfulness. Too little restful sleep can also lead to mood changes and anxiety, which in turn contributes to problems with memory.

Hormonal changes. A faltering thyroid can affect memory as well as disturb sleep and cause depression, both of which can be the causes of forgetfulness. A simple blood test can tell if our thyroid is doing its job properly.

Depression. Common signs of depression include a stifling sadness, lack of drive, and lessening of pleasure in things we ordinarily enjoy. Forgetfulness can also be a sign of depression - or a consequence of it.

Alcohol. Drinking too much alcohol can interfere with short-term memory, even after the effects of alcohol have worn off.

Further, a student studies and understands the events and causes of World War-I thoroughly. After a week, he studies about World War-II. Now, if he fails to remember the events and causes of the First World War, this will be an example of Retroactive interference. Suppose the student fails to remember the events and causes of the Second World War, it will be an example of Proactive interference. Here, forgetfulness is caused by a mix up of previously learned information with new and similar information.

Most memory problems among younger people are caused by emotional discord, which leads to become distracted and unfocused, and thus less effective both at making new memories or summoning old ones. Luckily, almost all of these causes are only temporary, or easy to fix with the proper medication. Something like getting more sleep, switching a proper medication, or a stress reduction programme could get your memory back on track.

c) Will you sympathise or ridicule someone who is intensely forgetful? Write an essay justifying your point of view.

INTENSIVE FORGETFULNESS

I will sympathise with someone who is intensely forgetful. Forgetfulness is part of our daily life. However intensive forgetfulness has many different causes, one of which is dementia. As one of the most noticeable symptoms of dementia, forgetfulness can trigger a range of emotions in both the person who is living with dementia and their career. It can be frustrating, upsetting and even, on occasions, funny. So, we should not ridicule someone who is intensely forgetful.

Whether they're forgetting a conversation that you had with them the day before, getting lost in a town that they've lived in for 40 years, repetitive behaviour or even hallucinations, it's important to know what you might expect with these symptoms and how to handle them. Dementia can cause these symptoms. In diseases such as Alzheimer's or vascular dementia, deterioration and shrinkage of brain tissue affects the links between brain cells, which make it harder for people to store memories.

It is important to remember that people forget things all the time for no reason. When someone has anxiety, there's a tendency to assume that his forgetfulness means something. Suppose, a person is forgetting things, does that mean he is getting older? Does that mean he has a brain disease? Is his anxiety causing memory loss? Lots of people forget things all the time. Anxiety causes numerous changes to happen to our brain and the way we think, and all of them can lead to issues that may contribute to forgetfulness.

GEQ COVERNMENT EXAM QUESTIONS

1. 'It is the efficiency rather than the inefficiency of human memory that compels my wonder'. - Elucidate.

(QY-'19)

Robert Lynd says that a modern man remembers telephone numbers, addresses of his friends, dates of good vintages, appointments for lunch and dinner, names of actors, actresses, cricketers, footballers and murderers. Thus he can remember almost everything in his life. He does not forget a single item of his clothing when dressing. Similarly, nobody forgets to shut the front door when leaving the house. A person never forgets to turn off the lights before going to sleep. However, many people fail to remember to take medicines regularly. Even though he has the medicine in his pocket, he forgets to take it at the correct time. He carries a letter in his hand while crossing the post box and forgets to post it. In his train journeys, he forgets books, walking-sticks and umbrellas. Sportsmen forget a number of footballs and cricket-bats. The angler forgets his fishing-rod. Therefore, it is the efficiency rather than the inefficiency of human memory that compels his wonder.

2. Write a short note on "Absent-mindedness" with reference to the essay on forgetting by Robert Lynd. (OR) "Most of us are born with prosaically efficient memories"-Explain it with a story, narrated by Lynd. (OR) What does Robert Lynd try to convey in his essay on 'Forgotting'?

(Mar-'19; QY-'23; July-'24)

Absent-mindedness is a lack of attention to what you are doing or what is happening around you because you are thinking about other things.

Ordinarily, a good memory is very common. So if a man does not have a good memory, we may call him an eccentric. Lynd narrates a very funny story of a father who takes his baby out in a perambulator in the morning. When he was crossing near a public-house, he was tempted for a glass of beer. He left the perambulator outside in the street and went into the public-house. After some time, his wife came that way for shopping. She was horrified to see her sleeping baby in the perambulator. She was so angry with her husband that she decided to teach him a lesson and wheeled away the perambulator. She expected that her husband would come trembling and would tell that their baby had been stolen. On the contrary, at lunch-time, her husband came home smiling cheerfully. He had completely forgotten all about his child and the perambulator. Lynd remarks that very few men below the rank of a philosopher would be capable of such absent-mindedness, like this man in the story. He concludes that most of us are born with prosaically efficient memories. That is why the institution of the family survives in any great modern city.

3. How does Robert Lynd analyse the various reasons for forgetfulness in humans? (Mar-2020)

Lynd says that in some matters human memory works less than its usual perfection. For example, most people forget to take the medicine, but they don't forget to have their meals. The medicines are usually taken before or after or during meals. The psychologists interpret forgetfulness that we forget things because we wish to forget them. People don't like medicines and that is why they forget to take them. In this context, Robert Lynd humorously remarks that chemists make a lot of money. Sportsmen returning from the games forget to take their footballs and cricket-bats, when they leave the train. It is due to the reason that they have their imaginations still filled with a vision of the playing field. However the ordinary man arrives at his destination with all his bags and trunks safe. Thus, Lynd rationalizes such an act. The angler may forget his fishing-rod, as the poet may forget to post a letter. Both the angler and the poet are imaginative people and their minds are filled with matter more glorious than the common activities in life.

PARAGRAPH QUESTIONS - ADDITIONAL

ANSWER THE FOLLOWING IN A PARAGRAPH OF 100 TO 150 WORDS EACH.

1. How does Robert Lynd prove that men have amazing memories?

Robert Lynd wonders about the efficiency of human memory. Modern man remembers even telephone numbers, the addresses of his friends, appointments for lunch and dinner, the names of actors, actresses, cricketers, footballers and murderers. Thus he can remember almost everything in his life. A man does not forget a single item of his clothing when dressing. Similarly, nobody forgets to shut the front door when leaving the house. Everybody remembers to do the right things at the right moment. Even the ordinary man never forgets to turn off the lights before going upstairs to sleep.

2. "The memory works with less than its usual perfection" – Elaborate this statement. (OR) "Chemists make their fortunes out of the medicines people forget to take!" Explain.

Lynd says that in some matters human memory works less than its usual perfection. For example, most people forget to take the medicine, but they don't forget to have their meals. The medicines are usually taken before or after or during meals. Psychologists say that we forget things because we wish to forget them. So people don't like medicines and that is why they forget to take the medicines. In this context, Robert Lynd humorously remarks that chemists make a lot of money. It is because people forget to take medicines and therefore their illness is not cured. So they pay more and more money to the chemists to buy more medicines from them.

3. "This, it might be thought, must be due to a lack of interest in other people's letters" – What does it mean?

According to Lynd, the commonest form of forgetfulness is in posting letters. Most people forget to post letters. So he humorously remarks that if anyone asks him to post a letter, he is a poor judge of character. It is because Lynd never posts the letter even if he keeps it in his pocket. The letter, which is not posted, leads to an unadventurous life in his pocket. At home, he faces embarrassing questions. Soon the guilt is brought out of his pocket. This, it might be thought, must be due to a lack of interest in others' letters; but that cannot be the explanation, because he also has forgotten to post some of his own letters.

iii) 'Forgetfulness is the beginning of happiness' Do you agree or disagree? Discuss in class.

- It is not correct that forgetfulness is the beginning of happiness. However, a little forgetfulness can be tolerated. A study in the journal 'Neuron' says forgetting information isn't a failure on our brain's part. In fact, just the opposite is true letting go of some information actually helps our mind work better. Assuming we aren't putting ourselves at risk of dementia, a little forgetfulness is nothing to worry about.
- The research review concluded our brain's main goal isn't to remember every little detail of our life. Its bigger focus is making good decisions in the future. As there's new information constantly flooding the brain, remembering everything would be totally overwhelming. To make a decision, we need to consider the pros and cons. To remember the stuff that's actually important, our mind needs to let go of some of the stuff, says an expert.
- It's important that the brain forgets irrelevant details and instead focusses on the stuff that's going to help make decisions in the real world. If we haven't done algebra since high school, there's no reason our brain would have felt the need to remember how to solve those. Forgetting doesn't mean our brain is messing up. In fact, the mind actually makes a point of actively losing track of those unimportant details. New neurons in the hippocampus the part of our brain responsible for memory encourages our brain to forget.
- If the brain didn't make a habit of forgetting, we would start to confuse ourselves. Our brain mashes all those specific memories into generalized ones to make it easier. The point of memory is to make us intelligent persons who can make decisions given the circumstances, and an important aspect in helping us do that is being able to forget some information.
- iv) Is there a link between intelligence and absent-mindedness? Share your views on this subject, with the class.

ABSENT-MINDED PEOPLE HAVE 'SUPERIOR INTELLIGENCE'

It is good to be forgetful. A study published by Neuron said that forgetful people may have superior intelligence. Now having an absent mindedness is not a problem instead a sign of intelligence as your brain is focused on the important things only. Storing too much in your mind is more like having a battle of information inside to be remembered by your brain. It can also become a reason to lose focus. It is not worth storing everything in your mind after having technology that is just a click away. Information can be easily stored in this fast era of technology. People trying to remember everything may have a hard time making important decisions.

This combination of intelligence and forgetfulness has long puzzled neuroscientists as a bad memory was seen as a failure of the brain's mechanism for storing and retrieving information. In fact, the purpose of our 'memory' is not to remember facts, but to help making intelligent decisions by retaining only valuable information. So the brain is not malfunctioning when it forgets something, it may have been actively trying to ditch the memory so it can focus on something more important or create a picture that is easier to understand.

As the research defines, forgetfulness is an activity of the brain to get rid of unwanted information and collectively store information required for smarter functioning and effective decision making. With this function, the brain works more smartly and effectively.
